Miner Memorial Library
Director's report

1. The Library Club is going pretty well with a small group of kids. Last week we had a spirited game of twister, some math homework and friends hanging out together.

2. We have a nice assortment of new books in, and I'm working on putting covers on some of these and other more newish books that are circulating, especially through ILL.

3. We've posted for the first meeting of the Stitch Club (credit to Hannah for this improvement over my original title). I have a stash of yarn, lots of mending materials, and I'm sorting through crocheting and knitting tools. The idea for this is to be a drop in opportunity to meet people, learn some new things, teach other people what you know, and get out of the house.

4. I met with Candice Magurk at the school library, who was clear that she can't do anymore than she's doing (not that I was asking). She is not overwhelmed by kids asking for books, and she really only interacts with students in K-4.

5. We've had some new patrons come in recently and set up library accounts. The busiest day of the week is Wednesday, not only because of Library Club. The slowest day is Tuesday afternoon into evening. Saturday is a mix of people coming in to look for a book and sometimes just talk.
